Don't let your credential expire -- Recertify on time!

NEW FOR 2010...

Beginning with recertifications due in 2010 IHMM will implement an audit review process. Only a percentage of the submissions will require full documentation of the CMP credit claimed on the Recertification Assessment Form. All CHMMs recertifying for the first time, all IHMM Board and Committee members, and all those submitting after the deadline has passed will be required to submit full documentation. CHMMs selected for audit will be notified prior to their submission due date. IHMM reserves the right to request documentation from any certificant.

THANK YOU!

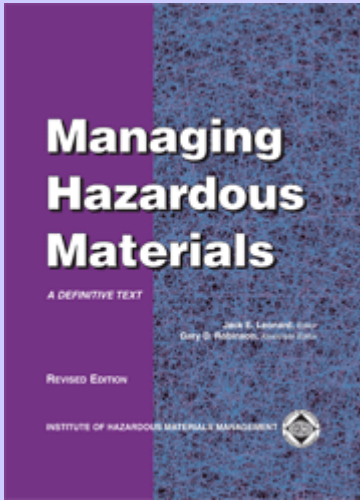

FOR SUPPORTING PROFESSIONAL CERTIFICATION

The last thing anyone wants is a catastrophe or a negative headline in the news because of a failure to properly manage dangerous or hazardous materials. Businesses that realize this staff themselves with employees at all levels who are properly qualified to handle and manage these items.

IHMM certified professionals help corporate leaders sleep better knowing that their products and operations are safe, secure, and compliant with current regulations. And, IHMM credentials help business leaders identify professionals--even when they are working under various job titles--that are certified to deal with hazardous materials.

The Institute of Hazardous Materials Management would like to thank all companies and organizations that encourage their employees involved in the management of hazardous materials to be certified. This support demonstrates their commitment to the professional excellence embodied in the accredited Certified Hazardous Materials Manager (CHMM) and the Certified Hazardous Materials Practitioner (CHMP) credentials, as well as the Hazardous Materials Manager-in-Training (HMMT) program.

Please let us know what the Institute can do to make your credential even more valuable!
