Desperate Need for PPE

There is a desperate need for any unused Personal Protective Gear by the medical and first responder communities.

This would include N95 Masks, P95 Masks, P100 Masks, Tyvek Suits of any kind, latex or nitrile gloves and face shields.

Please search your operations and consider a donation, if you do not have an immediate need for such PPE.

Check your supplies from:

- Completed Projects
- Discontinued Projects
- Training Exercises or Demonstrations
- Closed Operations
- Relocated Operations
- Closed Processes
- Buildings Scheduled for Demolition or Remodeling
- Closets of any kind that no one has looked in for months or years
- Old Spill Response Kits

Ask your clients, to do the same, such as:

- Schools/ Laboratories
- Churches
- Construction/Demolition
- Maintenance/Landscaping/Paint Shops
- Arts and Crafts
- Tattoo Parlors

- Vet, Dental or Medical Clinics with Discontinued Operations
- Nail and Hair Salons with Discontinued Operations

Ways to donate PPE around the U.S.:

- The website Donate PPE is aggregating donations needed by a variety of hospitals in several states. It provides both the PPE that a medical facility is requesting and the specific drop-off procedures of those facilities.
- PPE Link, a site set up by scientists, engineers and medical professionals across the U.S., is seeking donations through a form on its website. The volunteers said they will match donors and requests based on location, supplies and delivery/pickup capability and then connect them to coordinate a transfer.
- Several university medical centers are collecting donations, including the University of Michigan, Johns Hopkins University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The Association of American Universities is keeping an updated list of universities seeking donations here.
- The state of Oregon is collecting PPE through its government website. According to the site, the PPE will be inspected, inventoried, and distributed throughout the state to medical professionals working with COVID-19 patients. It can be dropped off in-person or sent through the mail.
- The state of Washington is also collecting through its website. The state is focusing on bulk donations to fill the highest needs first and advises individuals with smaller donations to contact your local emergency management agency. Seattle Children's is also accepting donations.
- Businesses interested in selling PPE to New York state can contact the governor's office directly through its website.
- The County of Santa Clara Health System is accepting donations at its office in San Jose, California. It will distribute donated supplies to the Santa Clara Valley Medical Center Hospital & Clinics, O'Connor Hospital, St Louise Regional Hospital, Santa Clara County Public Health Department and other affiliated agencies.
- Local communities are holding PPE drives for people to drop-off donations. Colorado House Majority Leader Alec Garnett is hosting a drive Sunday at the Broncos Stadium in Denver to support the state's healthcare workers.
- Cambridge Health Alliance in Massachusetts said that PPE donations can be dropped off 24/7 with public safety officials at the main entrances of Cambridge, Everett and Somerville Hospitals. Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston is also seeking donations on its website.
- A group of volunteers called the Seattle Mask Brigade are working to pick up N-95 masks in-person to donate to Seattle-area healthcare and social service professionals. To donate unused masks, you can fill out a form on its website.
- A group of volunteers is coordinating the collection and delivery of PPE in the Bay Area. Volunteer drivers will pick up equipment from donors and deliver it directly to local hospitals and clinics. People looking to donate can fill out this form.
- San Mateo County is seeking donations on its website to assist local health care providers and health care facilities in California.

- County Health Departments or EMA's will accept your donations.
